Early Life and Conversion to Islam

Ali was born in Mecca, Arabia, around 600 CE. He was the son of Abu Talib, a leader of the Banu Hashim clan, and Fatima bint Asad. Ali's father died when he was young, and he was raised by his uncle, the Prophet Muhammad. Ali was one of the first people to convert to Islam, and he remained a steadfast supporter of Muhammad throughout his life.

Role in the Rashidun Caliphate

After Muhammad's death in 632 CE, Ali played a key role in the establishment of the Rashidun Caliphate, the first Islamic state. He served as a close advisor to the first three caliphs, Abu Bakr, Umar, and Uthman. Ali was also a skilled military commander, and he led the Muslim armies to victory in several key battles.

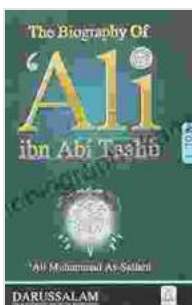

Caliphate and Assassination

In 656 CE, Ali was elected as the fourth caliph. His reign was marked by a number of challenges, including the First Fitna, a civil war that erupted after the assassination of Uthman. Ali was assassinated in 661 CE by a member of the Kharijite sect.
