

Aura Kilner Screens: Unlocking the Secrets of the Human Energy Field

Aura Kilner screens are a unique and fascinating tool that allow us to visualize and interpret the human energy field, also known as the aura. These screens were developed by Walter John Kilner, a British physicist and physician, in the early 20th century. Kilner was intrigued by the work of Charles William Leadbeater, a Theosophist who claimed to be able to see the aura with his naked eye. Inspired by Leadbeater's work, Kilner set out to develop a tool that would allow others to see the aura as well.

After years of experimentation, Kilner developed a series of screens that were coated with a special chemical compound. When these screens were placed in front of a person, they would emit a faint light that would correspond to the colors of the person's aura. Kilner believed that the colors of the aura could reveal a person's health, personality, and spiritual development.

How Aura Kilner Screens Work

Aura Kilner screens work by detecting the electromagnetic field that surrounds the human body. This electromagnetic field is created by the movement of charged particles within the body, and it varies in strength and frequency depending on the person's health, emotions, and thoughts.

When an Aura Kilner screen is placed in front of a person, the electromagnetic field interacts with the chemical compound on the screen, causing it to emit light. The color of the light that is emitted corresponds to the frequency of the electromagnetic field, and it can be interpreted to reveal information about the person's aura.

The Colors of the Aura

The colors of the aura are said to correspond to different aspects of a person's being. For example, red is associated with passion, energy, and vitality; blue is associated with peace, tranquility, and spirituality; and yellow is associated with intellect, creativity, and optimism.

However, it is important to note that the colors of the aura are not static. They can change depending on a person's mood, health, and thoughts. For example, someone who is feeling angry may have a red aura, while someone who is feeling peaceful may have a blue aura.

Interpreting the Aura

Interpreting the aura is a complex process that requires training and experience. However, there are some general guidelines that can be followed. For example, a bright, clear aura is generally considered to be a sign of good health and well-being, while a dull, murky aura is generally considered to be a sign of ill health or distress.

The colors of the aura can also be interpreted to reveal information about a person's personality and spiritual development. For example, someone with a strong red aura is often described as being passionate and outgoing, while someone with a strong blue aura is often described as being peaceful and compassionate.

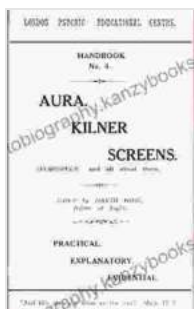

Uses of Aura Kilner Screens

Aura Kilner screens can be used for a variety of purposes, including:

* Healing: Aura Kilner screens can be used to diagnose and treat illnesses by identifying imbalances in the aura. * Personal development: Aura Kilner screens can be used to help people understand their own energy field and how it affects their lives. * Spiritual development: Aura Kilner screens can be used to help people connect with their higher selves and to develop their spiritual potential.

Aura Kilner screens are a powerful tool that can help us to understand ourselves and others on a deeper level. By learning to interpret the aura, we can gain insights into our own health, personality, and spiritual development. We can also use Aura Kilner screens to help others heal, grow, and evolve.
